DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 2, 7-9, and 11-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nakagawa et al (2002/0075643).

Nakagawa et al disclose a method and apparatus for cooling a non-uniformly heated integrated circuit (Fig. 1) having at least one low power region and at least one high power region, including an inlet for a coolant, the inlet being connected with a high power region of the integrated circuit (embodiment of Fig. 3(1)), means for transferring the coolant from the high power region to a low power region, and an outlet for the coolant connected to the low power region of the integrated circuit, the coolant being a single phase coolant, and a pump for moving the coolant.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 3-6 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakagawa et al (2002/0075643) in view of Patel et al (2002/0113142).

Nakagawa et al disclose the method and apparatus as claimed with the exception of the coolant being a two phase coolant and the means for transferring the coolant comprising a chamber. Patel et al teach using a two phase coolant with a chamber to cool a circuit. It would have been obvious in view of Patel et al to use a two phase coolant with a chamber to cool the circuit of Nakagawa et al, the motivation being to enable dissipating a greater amount of heat.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Frankeny et al, Kieda et al, Go et al, Hou, Suga et al, and Fukazu et al are cited to show circuit cooling.

6. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Teresa J. Walberg whose telephone number is 571-272-4790. The examiner can normally be reached on M-F 9:00 - 5:30.
